THE MISSION OF NICC

is to provide education and guidance in collaboration with tribal leaders, industry professionals and elected officials relative to the emerging regulated cannabis industry, while advocating for parity on behalf of Indian Country.

Established in 2015, NICC was formed to guide tribal entities through the initial considerations and challenges associated with entering the regulated cannabis market.

NICC's initiatives include helping create self-sufficient communities, decreasing reliance on federal funding and positioning Indian Country as leaders in agricultural industrial hemp production.

ADVOCATE

NICC is an advocacy organization focused on the unique interests of Native American Indian tribes as they venture into the forefront of the emerging cannabis industry. We provide a seat at the table as government deals with changing regulations and legal issues, helping to ensure parity for tribes.

NAVIGATE

NICC assists tribal entities navigate through the considerations and challenges of legal issues and regulatory compliance associated with cannabis cultivation.

EDUCATE

NICC provides opportunities to learn more about the financing, design and construction of cannabis enterprises, with public health and safety as NICC's primary concern.

COLLABORATE

NICC builds connections between tribal leadership/administration and industry affiliates, economic development leaders, regulatory/general counsel and health professionals.
